WALTER DRUCE

ABOUT

Australian guitarist and singer-songwriter Walter Druce has called Quebec home since 2013. With degrees in Contemporary Music and Music Performance from Southern Cross University and the University of Melbourne, he launched his career with the 2012 EP Hour of Need as part of the duo Sad Little Souls.

Since settling in Canada, Walter has collaborated with numerous artists, including Andréanne Martin, Nora Toutain, Simon Denizart, and Beatrice Keeler, while contributing to various bands over the years.

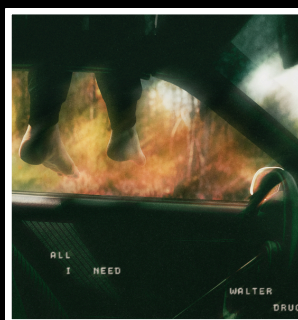

In recent years, Walter has focused more on his own compositions. His musical style is influenced by Blues and Rock genres. Walter draws inspiration from great guitarists such as Derek Trucks, Stevie Ray Vaughan, and Robben Ford.

Walter has built a strong presence with over 35K followers on social media, where his exceptional electric guitar skills and mastery of slide guitar have earned him widespread recognition. His strong social media presence has led to collaborations with brands like The Rock Slide, Stringjoy, Mule Resophonic Guitars, Missing Link Audio, and B&G Guitars.

In 2024, Walter took his artistry to new heights with standout performances, including opening for Les Shirley's at the Festival des Guitares du Monde en Abitibi-Témiscamingue, headlining with his band at Montreal's West Island Blues Festival, and opening for Philippe Brach at the Ouestival.

Alongside his live shows, Walter released three new singles—Hero, Home Again, and All I Need—showcasing his soulful songwriting and signature slide guitar style.
